PRESENTER: Ed Caron

A manufacturing professional with 35+ years of experience in the field of custom optical manufacturing, with experience in production control, applications sales engineering and operations management.

- ✓ Currently employed as a video production associate at a local public access television station, a position I've held since 2015.
- ✓ My career arc from manufacturing and sales manager within a global scientific marketplace to a part time team member in a small non-profit, working creatively and exclusively within the community in which I reside has been an interesting journey, with many lessons learned.
- ✓ Many of those lessons were learned at networking and job seeker support groups such as Westford Job Seekers, where I've met a surprising number of very talented people sharing similar circumstances.

✚ Join me today and share your stories too!
